Amazing.

No words to describe the feelings. I've never been more in love with art. Tim Shaw introduces a whole new view to my world

So proud to be a long time member of SDMA.

This is a profound example of art being life.

We are all pushed by this! Thank you

You don't trust your audience.
Too much hard-

Finally, a real artist awake to the present who is brilliantly and painfully informing our awareness of the real present and illumination from the dark of the distant past.

Thanks to Tim Shaw

So powerful

If you are at all psychically sensitive like myself the pain is almost overwhelming. Quite a statement. So important for Americans to see right now.

I loved the clown. the speech was very aware of artificial intelligence and the oblivion of the detrimental consequences of it today & the future. "Don't walk into a nightmare and let robots tell you what to do"

I can feel the terror, and pain in your creations It is unbelievable, the action, and feeling you have created, without words, without human action. Beautifully moving.
THANK YOU! (Sanyana F, II)

The art may be abstract, but the terror is real. The everyday objects and setting remind us of how arbitrary terror can be. Scary.
Peace please.

Is anyone really Right?— This is an EPIC experience which titillates all senses and emotions questioning existence, humanity, love and loss. This brings up all emotions. This hits home and helps me deal with a horrible death many years ago. This connects humanity in 1973 to 2018— The horrible acts we do to each other.

I went in without knowing what to expect. It felt cheesy, like a cheap fun house. But then ~~realization~~ meaning dropped and I felt a chill in my spine. Powerful stuff!

Breakdown clown very pretic - a bit too formulare/predictable @ places near the end.

I think the piece might've been creepier/more effective w/ more AI capability in the robot - people really want to interact w/ it + treat it
